

LIQUOR CONTROL BILL PASSED BY SENATE

CHICAGO MILK BLOCKADE ENDS; TRUCE SIGNED

DAIRYMEN AND FARMERS WILL FIX PRICES

Mediation Board To Be Appointed By Both Sides

Chicago, Jan. 10.—(P)—The Chicago milk blockade was ended today as the federal government moved toward stern intervention against interference with interstate shipments and with the United States mails.

Settlement of the strike was in the form of a truce signed by representatives of the farmers, the big Chicago dairies, and even the independent dairies which in the past have refused to guarantee any minimum price to producers.

Under terms of the truce, a mediation board of three members—one from the distributors, one from the farmers, and a third to be selected by the first two—will be named to agree on a fair price to be paid farmers.

Virtual Civil War.

The settlement came as violence and sabotage in Chicago and the territory for 100 miles around reached the point of virtual civil war. Thousands of gallons of milk had been spilled on highways, trucks and dairies wrecked, nine trains stopped and searched for milk dairymen slugged. When the embargo ended there was not a drop of milk for sale in Chicago stores, even families with small children could obtain none, and deliveries to hospitals and institutions were threatened.

The settlement in many ways was regarded as more favorable to the farmers than any condition previously prevailing in the Chicago milk market, even under the milk marketing act put into effect by the agricultural adjustment act and abandoned Jan. 1.

For the first time, independent dairies (non-members of the Chicago Milk Council, Inc.) will pay a minimum price basis for their milk.

Dairies which refused to abide by the federal marketing agreement were among those signing the truce. They included the Meadowmoor, Edgewater, Wagner and Lakeview companies.

The agreement was reached at a conference of producers and distributors in the office of Mayor Edward J. Kelly. It was ratified a few hours later by the advisory committee of the Pure Milk Association, which called the selling embargo last Saturday.

Officials of the Pure Milk Association said they hoped that after the price is agreed upon it would be enforced by the AAA, by a system of licensing all distributors.

Mayor Kelly said that pending action by the AAA the proposed price agreement would be enforced by the Chicago board of health and the police department.

Signing of the truce was the signal for the huge trucks of the Chicago dairies to roll out of their garages and rumble away to the country for supplies of milk. Some of them loaded up within 40 miles of the city and were back within three hours.

Milk wagons soon were on the streets for the first time in five days.

SENATE ADOPTS HOUSE LIQUOR TAX MEASURE

Amendment Strikes At Defaulting Nations

By D. Harold Oliver

Washington, Jan. 10.—(P)—With a pace that matched that set in the emergency session, the senate swung into action today and passed the house liquor bill within two hours, attaching to it, however, an amendment striking at foreign debt defaulting nations.

The bill went to conference with the house.

The first senate roll call of the session brought adoption of the amendment by Senator Clark (D-Mo.) to place excise levies of $3 a gallon on wines and $5 on liquors from defaulting nations, in addition to the tariff. The vote was 40 to 39 with both parties splitting on the issue.

Reject Proposal

A similar proposal was rejected by the house last week and democratic leaders predicted its defeat there again. They urged its rejection on the ground it did not belong in the tax bill, should be considered separately, would lead to retaliation and would interfere with reciprocal tariff bargaining as planned by President Roosevelt.

COAL MINE WILL BE REOPENED AT HARCO, ILL., TODAY

Local Officers Receive Word To Start Work In Shafts Immediately

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 10.—(P)—The local office of the Peabody Coal Company today received word that its mine No. 47 at Harco, Saline county, would be reopened tomorrow.

Charles McCrackin, Peabody's divisional superintendent at Harrisburg, sent word that the boilers at mine No. 47 were being fired this afternoon as a preliminary to the resumption of operations tomorrow, when 150 men will start clean up work.

All loaders, machine men and day men were ordered to report at the mine Friday, when the digging of coal will again start. The mine normally employs about 900 men.

There was no information about when Peabody Mine 43 would reopen. Operations were stopped there after serious rioting between mine union factions in October.

Mine No. 47 has been idle since summer.

M. F. Pelletier, executive vice president of the Peabody Coal Company, was quoted from Chicago as denying that Peabody employees were being sent to Mark in Putnam county, in an effort to influence a union referendum there next Wednesday. The importation was charged by President Claude E. Peary of the Progressive Miners of America in a statement issued at Gillespie.

Pelletier said he was not interested personally in the union fight at Mark and that he did not even know the exact location of that mine.

$10,000,000 DAMAGE SUIT FILED IN N. Y.

Unfair Competition By Rockefeller Is Charged

New York, Jan. 10.—(P)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and associates in the Rockefeller center development were charged with unfair competition in soliciting tenants in a $10,000,000 damage suit filed today by real estate interests controlled by August Heckscher, aged multi-millionaire philanthropist.

The use of coercion to force businesses in which they have an interest to vacate leases and move to Rockefeller center was alleged in the complaint against the defendants who include Winthrop W. Aldrich, banker and brother-in-law of Rockefeller, and Nelson A. Rockefeller, a son.

The plaintiffs are the Anahma Realty Corporation and the Broadway Exchange Corporation. Heckscher, who has recovered from a collapse on his recent 85th birthday, is president of the former company. Three years ago he was reckoned as the largest owner of income-producing real estate in New York, replacing the Astor family.

An injunction to end such alleged practices by the Rockefeller center interests was sought in the complaint.

Rockefeller center was characterized as a "modern Frankenstein" stepping "through the door of special privilege into the realm of destructive competition" in the suit. It alleged violation of an act of congress allowing the center to operate as a bonded warehouse for the display of foreign goods free of duty until sold or reexported.

"As plaintiffs are informed and believe," the complaint set forth, "the (Continued on Page Two)

RFC MEASURE APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

By Richard L. Turner

Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 10.—(P)—Bearing an administration tax, a proposal that the Reconstruction Corporation be given another year of life and $850,000 more capital was ready tonight for action by congress.

The house coinage committee prepared to start an elaborate and extensive inquiry into methods of stabilizing the dollar, with an imposing list of witnesses to be heard.

The RFC measure was approved by the house banking committee which shelved a bill introduced by its chairman, representative Steagall of Alabama, to report a measure identical with that adopted yesterday by the senate banking committee.

Steagall's bill proposed a three-year extension, a $500,000,000 increase in capital and contained a provision which would make RFC debentures eligible for redemptio at the federal reserve banks, a proposal which popped up from time to time only to run into determined opposition from the conservatives in congress.

Discount Provision

The discount provision was suggested this time by chairman Jones of the RFC. The senate committee rejected it yesterday. Testifying before the house group, Jones said today that while his agency felt that it might do some good by making the debentures more readily marketable he was not insistent that the provision be retained.

The house originally asked for a three-year extension and a billion dollars of added capital to supplement the five billions the RFC already has either loaned or allocated for loans. He went to the capital today direct from a conference with President Roosevelt and told the committee that the measure approved by the senate committee was acceptable to both the chief executive and himself.

Chairman Somers of the coinage committee explained that the prospective inquiry on monetary matters was in no sense to be considered a revolt against the monetary program of President Roosevelt.

Its purpose, he said, was to throw as much light as possible on a question that has become badly clouded in the "propaganda of controversy."

The issue of making RFC paper discountable at federal reserve banks has been a subject of controversy.

2 NAZIS KILLED, 500 CLAPPED IN JAIL AT VIENNA

Demonstrations Against Government Are Most Alarming

By Wade Werner

Associated Press Foreign Staff

Vienna, Jan. 10.—(P)—Two Nazis were killed, several wounded and more than 500 clapped into jail in a nationwide outburst of anti-government demonstrations today, the most alarming since Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss outlawed the Nazi party last June.

For the first time since the beginning of Nazi agitation in Austria, the whole city of Vienna echoed to night with bomb explosions. One bomb damaged the city railway station near the historic Schoenbrunn Palace.

The whole Third district of Vienna was darkened by the wrecking of an electric transformer.

The spread of German Nazism to Austria, rigidly opposed by Chancellor Dollfuss and his chief military backer, the Austrian Heimwehr, was at the bottom of the trouble. But tonight's disturbances involved also bitter political feeling over the Heimwehr's determination to oust Socialists as well as Nazis from the country.

The demonstrations were organized mostly in the voluntary labor corps camps in various provinces. Nazis invaded Vienna, Klagenfurt and other cities armed with bombs, tear gas and other paraphernalia of violence.

The two fatalities were the result of a Nazi raid on a Klagenfurt newspaper. Thirty members of voluntary labor corps, recently denounced as having Nazi sympathies, invading the office of the pro-government publication.

A home guardsman attempted to interfere and was tossed over a nearby fence, while the attackers threw a noise bomb into the print shop.

The guard opened fire, killing one Nazi, fatally injuring another and slightly injuring a third.

At one labor camp in Burgenland 144 Nazis broke out and escaped into Hungary, presumably, authorities said, with intention of going to Germany later. They were being held by authorities in Hungary.

NAVY PLANES IN NONSTOP FLIGHT TO HONOLULU

Six Big Ships Take-Off From San Francisco Wednesday

San Francisco, Jan. 10.—(P)—Along the perilous 2,400 mile air trail between San Francisco and Honolulu, six big navy seaplanes sped in formation today after spending two hours in a mighty struggle to get aloft with their heavy loads in a light breeze.

Out through the golden gate they headed at 2:22 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time) two hours and 10 minutes after the first plane rose from the waters of San Francisco Bay. At 2:29 p. m. they passed Point Lobos, westernmost point of land here, and roared seaward.

The fliers expected to make the trip in 24 hours or less, depending upon weather conditions. They had nearly 1,000 gallons of fuel in each plane and figured on a safety margin of two hours in their gasoline supply.

Lieut. Quinn's plane, however, consumed probably two hours supply while it was circling and awaiting the other planes' takeoff, navy officers said.

Admiral David F. Sellers, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, Governor James Rolph, Jr., of California, Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco, and other officials watched the seaplanes take to the air.

Longest Sea Trip

Although they were officially performing routine duty, the six officers and 24 men aboard the big ships actually were starting the longest overseas mass flight ever attempted—an undertaking described by aviators as something more difficult than the mass flight of General Italo Balbo's Italian planes across the North Atlantic.

The goal of the American fliers is but a pin point on the map of the Pacific and any slight miscalculation would send them wide of their mark. However, a half dozen navy ships, stationed 300 miles apart along this course, stood by ready to speed to the aid of any plane coming to distress.

The aerial path eight years ago was blazed by the late Commander (Continued on Page Two)

PEABODY-U. M. W. A CONTRACT UPHELD BY LABOR BOARD

Progressives Had Charged Discrimination Against Its Members

Chicago, Jan. 10.—(P)—The contract between United Mine Workers of America and two Peabody Coal company mines at Harrisburg, Ill., was upheld today in a decision of the local division of the bituminous coal labor board.

Members of the Progressive Miners' Union, rival of the older labor organization, charged discrimination against their members in negotiations of contracts and alleged that the signing of the new contract in August, 1932, was arbitrarily imposed, and in violation of intent of the NRA collective bargaining provisions.

The decision made public by Dr. John A. Lapp, chairman and presidential member of the board, said: "The case involved the right of representation for collective bargaining purposes in this mine as between United Mine Workers and the Progressive Miners. From the evidence it appears that the mine had operated under a contract with the United Mine Workers for several years past. x x x it appears that the men in mine No. 47 and also in mine No. 43 at Duluth called meetings ratified the contract and proceeded to work under it."

The contract later was extended to run until April, 1935, and in the meantime the Progressives claimed that their membership represented the majority of the workers at the two mines. Denied demands for recognition by the operators, their members struck last February and the mines remained closed most of the time.

The Peabody Coal company announced that Mine No. 47 would begin operations tomorrow.

In Springfield Governor Henry Horner appealed to Saline county officials to see that the decision was carried out without any show of violence. He said the board appointed by the president in its decision had the effect of "law and should be respected as such."

"In this connection," the governor said, "it is my determination to see that law and order are maintained."

In Saline county, however, law enforcement officials were in somewhat of a quandary. Sheriff Eugene Choiseur has been enjoined by one injunction restraining him from interfering with ingress of United Mine Workers from outside the county. He had no statement to make.

State Attorney John Kane of Harrisburg said "my office will do everything possible to follow out the governor's instructions in keeping peace."

REVENUE AGENTS MAKE ARRESTS

St. Louis, Jan. 10.—(P)—Internal revenue agents tonight reported they had made three arrests in their campaign to drive bootleg liquors off the St. Louis market.

R. E. Herrick, investigator in charge of the alcohol beverage unit, department of justice, whose men are making the investigation, said he had been informed his officers made the arrests in two establishments where large quantities of "moonshine" liquor was found.

Herrick said the federal tax of $110 a gallon had not been paid on the "moonshine."

Although Missouri still is technical "bone dry," scores of liquor establishments have operated openly since repeal of the 18th amendment.

EXCISE TAX ON DEBTOR NATIONS BEING PROPOSED

Question Is Debated During Senate Session

Washington, Jan. 10.—(P)—War debts lighted a colorful flare of congressional debate today to lead debaters toward penalizing backward nations.

Close behind, with fate yet to be settled, was President Roosevelt's recommendation of today, backed by the federal power commission, for ratification of the St. Lawrence treaty with Canada under which a gigantic power and navigation system would be built.

In the high blaze of Washington developments to which international affairs brought much fuel, impending dispute over recognition of Russia was disclosed by the refusal of two members of the Senate foreign relations committee to vote for committee approval of William C. Bullitt of Pennsylvania as ambassador to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

War Debt Penalty.

The war debt penalty was attached to the liquor tax bill pending in the Senate. An amendment was adopted, which would require that a country could not be obtained this afternoon from a group of House members at an informal conference this afternoon urged that the third special session, to run concurrently with the present liquor debates, be called at once so that school financing can be arranged. The Senate required two hours to end its debates and approve the bill. Most of those voting for passage explained that they objected to certain sections, some of them of major importance, but believed that enactment of liquor regulations without further delay is necessary.

From a Republican senator, Roy C. Woods of Chicago, came approval of Governor Horner's stand during the long deadlock with the Chicago Democratic organization over home rule in licensing of retailers.

"The governor went almost to the breaking point with his own party," Woods said. "I wish he had gone the whole way."

Outspoken in opposition were N. M. Mason of Oglesby and Thomas P. Gunning of Princeton, Republicans, and James O. Monroe, Collinsville, Democrat.

"RELIEF WORKER" IS BEING SOUGHT BY N. Y. POLICE

Takes 23 Day Old Baby From Mother Promising To Return in Hour

New York, Jan. 10.—(P)—A "fake relief worker" who disappeared with a 23 day old baby of impoverished parents was sought tonight in an intensive police search in which federal agents cooperated.

Baby Patricia Luciano was taken yesterday from the east side flat of her parents by a modestly dressed woman, about 30, wearing smoked glasses.

The "nurse" who gave the child's mother, Mrs. Mary Luciano, a strange, misspelled note, said she was taking the baby to be outfitted in new clothes and would return in an hour. Police apparently had but one clue. A woman visited the family after an article in a newspaper telling of their impoverishment. She was said to have "a mother complex."

The baby's parents said the woman became attracted to baby Patricia and that she resembled the woman who took the child away. They recalled only that the woman said she was from Danbury, Conn. Police of that city were asked to cooperate in the search.

Police also questioned Louis Palmer, 19, a cousin of the baby's father, Edward Luciano. They declined to disclose the nature of the questioning. The police officially labelled the case a kidnapping.

Both ill and grief-stricken, the parents clung to the hope that the baby will be treated kindly.

"She looked like a lady," said the mother, describing the "nurse."

BITTER FIGHT EXPECTED IN LOWER HOUSE

Speaker Roe Summons Members To Meet Today

By Milburn P. Akers

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 10.—(P)—The generous support of a 39 to 6 roll call was given by the Illinois Senate this afternoon to the compromise liquor control bill, which was sent back to the House with prospects of another long drawn out fight before final agreement can be reached on the scores of controversial amendments.

Many votes were cast for the bill with the explanation that, in spite of dissatisfaction over some of its provisions, it is the best available compromise and that further delays should be avoided.

Democratic lines in the Senate, reunited as a result of the new agreement between Governor Horner and Mayor Kelly of Chicago for a dual commission, were virtually solid in supporting the bill, which got five votes more than the 34 required for emergency enactment.

Action Deferred.

The House received the bill at a perfunctory session, but deferred until tomorrow its decision on whether it would occur in the amendments without further argument.

Concurrence was regarded as improbable, however. Considerable sentiment was expressed among the representatives in favor of a refusal to accept the amendments, numbering in the vicinity of two hundred, with which the Senate virtually rewrote the measure since it passed the House before Christmas.

If the House should refuse to concur, it was accepted as a certainty that the Senate, then, would refuse to recede from its position in favor of the amendments.

That would bring the final legislative step, the appointment of a conference committee representing the two branches of the assembly and charged with the responsibility of composing inter-house differences so that eventual approval could be obtained from two-thirds of the entire membership.

Speaker Arthur Roe sent telegrams to absent representatives, calling them back for the session tomorrow morning at which a decision on concurrence is to be reached. A quorum could not be obtained this afternoon.

A group of House members at an informal conference this afternoon urged that the third special session, to run concurrently with the present liquor debates, be called at once so that school financing can be arranged. The Senate required two hours to end its debates and approve the bill. Most of those voting for passage explained that they objected to certain sections, some of them of major importance, but believed that enactment of liquor regulations without further delay is necessary.

From a Republican senator, Roy C. Woods of Chicago, came approval of Governor Horner's stand during the long deadlock with the Chicago Democratic organization over home rule in licensing of retailers.

New Prison For Cook

Col. Frank B. Whipp, warden of Joliet, Ill., has suggested to Governor
Homer the erection of a new prison in or near Cook
county to house prisoners from Chicago. The warden is worried over the crowded condition in Joliet and Stateville, and declares that 300 more prisoners will swamp the institution.
The fact is, Cook county has been speeding up machinery to get rid of its criminals, and has been sending them to prison more rapidly and for longer terms than in previous years.
The situation is another proof of the opinion that there are still more crooks outside the penitentiary than there are inside. When the net of the law is made tighter, it naturally
gathers in more of the lawless.

"For weeks we have been receiving
prisoners at the rate of twenty-five a day," Warden Whipp said, "a rate far
in excess of the number we can discharge legally under the parole act."
The old prison at Joliet, built to accommodate 900 prisoners, has today
1,796 inmates. The new prison at Stateville, built to house 2,000, has 3,473. Including the honor farm, our prison population today is 5,405.

"The bulk of the population of both institutions is from Chicago and Cook
county, and as I see it, the only remedy is to construct a new prison
there to accommodate from 1,000 to 1,500 prisoners. This also would affect a saving in transportation costs
and time."

Col. Whipp's plan seems logical, and no doubt Illinois will have another prison if revenues permit. However,
it might be well to keep Cook county
prisoners farther from home and transfer some from downtown to the new prison when it is built.

Late Hour Dangers

One of the odd things which the Ohio State Highway Department has discovered is that the accident rate
on country roads is highest between the hours of 3 and 4 a. m.—precisely
the moment when the stream of traffic is at its thinnest.

Part of this is due to the fact that
a certain percentage of intoxicated
motorists is found on the highways at that hour; and an intoxicated motorist who is out driving at half past
three in the morning is apt to be very badly intoxicated indeed.

Partly, also, it is due to the toll of fatigue. Motorists frequently fall asleep at the wheel, in the course of an all-night drive, with disastrous results.

And partly, too, it is due to the fact that the empty roads tempt
many drivers to indulge in dangerously high speeds.

In any case, the survey is worth a little thought. All of us, at one time or another, have occasion to drive all night.

When we do, we might remember
briefly that those perilous hours
when the roads are clear and driving
seems so simple, are really the most dangerous of the day.

Making France Pay Up

Congress is much incensed over the refusal of France to pay her debts to the United States. But this is not the first time the French have been "dead beats" when this country was the creditor. During the Napoleonic wars, France preyed on American shipping, and after the war, the United States put in claims for damages. France paid no attention to them, but when Andrew Jackson became president he insisted on settlement. A treaty was made in 1831
whereby France was to pay this country $5,000,000.

From the first the French regarded
the treaty as a scrap of paper. Jackson finally sent Edward Livingston
as minister to France with the special purpose of getting some money
out of the Paris government. The chamber of Deputies would not listen to him. Livingston reported to Jackson and he in turn reported to Congress in 1834 the exact situation. What happened further makes interesting
reading as related in a recent editorial in the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

President Jackson remarked that it
was a principle of international law
that when one nation refused to pay
a just debt the aggrieved nation may
"seize on the property belonging to the citizens of the defaulting nation."
If, therefore, France did not pay the money at the next session of her Parliament, the United States ought to delay no longer to take by force
what it could not get by negotiation.

The French professed to be greatly offended by Jackson's "strong language" and "high tone" and there was an indignation meeting in the Paris
press. The French minister at Washington was recalled and Livingston
was offered his passports.

"This treaty," said Adams, "has been ratified on both sides of the ocean; it has received the sign mandatory of the sovereign of France
through his majesty's principal minister of state; it has been ratified by the Senate of this republic; and still
we are told that the arrogance of France, the insolence of the French Chambers, must be submitted to, and we must come down to the lower degradation of reopening negotiations to obtain that which has already been acknowledged to be our due."

Jack-
son did not quail as events
unfolding from grave to graver phases. It was manifest he was "going through."

So serious was the situation that Great Britain offered her mediation.
It was accepted by Jackson, who had made his objectives clear and who was content with an approach that pointed to their attainment.

Confronted by such a President and
a resolute nation, the French swiftly
changed their attitude and decided to observe their promises and adhere to their treaties. The long resisted payments were soon made. The incident was quickly closed.

But the vigor of Jackson scored his point.
It was seen that the American President meant business. The members of Congress who had opposed Gen. Jackson's fiscal measures, his tariff policy, his land policy, his
banking policy, and others, gave him
the most cordial support. No one supported him with more vigor than the former President, John Quincy Adams.

The latter's speech in the House of Representatives was one of the most remarkable ever delivered in that assembly. History relates that at its conclusion the House was "lost in excitement" and as the aged statesman
sank back exhausted into his chair
"the very walls shook with the thundering applause he had awakened."

Avoiding Disillusion

One thing, at least, occurs to anyone who meditates over the tremendous federal budget that recently was passed in Washington. It is extremely unlikely that it will contain
any unpleasant surprises for anybody.

By using the lowest estimate of government receipts and the highest
estimate of government expenditures,
the president gave us as dark a picture as his possibly could have given.
If everything goes badly, things will be just as he presented them; if, on the other hand, the government
spends a little less than the maximum, or receives a little more than
the minimum, they will be a good deal better.

Probably it is just as well that we look at the darker side first. Whatever happens, we at least have no
false hopes.

The government's finances for the coming year won't disillusion us. The only possible surprise will be a pleasant one.

A Gangster's Waterloo

(Quincy Herald-Whisper)

If "handsome" Jack Klutas is a good motto, Jack Klutas belied
his nickname. He was never handsome to custodians of good order nor
to people who dislike the terrorism of the criminal gang.

It is a little disconcerting to learn
that "handsome" Jack was a college
man, that he had spent two years at the state university and that his followers were college men. Perhaps that is the reason they were hard to catch. Many criminals are apprehended through their connection with the underworld. In some manner,
officers are able to establish contacts
with this underworld and through information that is furnished often
make important arrests. But Klutas
and his men operated independently
of it. One of his men who fell into the hands of the authorities, "talked"
and that was the best information the
police had concerning him.

The week-end was a bad period for gangsters. It marked the passing of Underhill, one of the men who led
the famous prison break in Kansas
and supposedly a member of the crew that killed four officers and a prisoner at the Kansas City passenger station. But Underhill had no college background and was presumed to have only a fair education. Sixty years ago he might have been called
a "desperado."

Gradually the old gangs will be broken up and their members dispatched to prison. Now and then they run into a Waterloo, like that of Saturday night. The care of society should be to see that new gangs are not formed to take the place of the old ones. Whether educated or not,
gang members ought to realize that
crime never pays.

WILL ROGERS says:

To the Editor of The Journal-Courier:
Riverside, Calif., Jan. 10.—The Republican National Committee come
out strongly yesterday against Roosevelt's economic policy. Just two days ago the deficit of the Republican National Committee had been published.
It was the highest on record. There isn't anything like one broke man
telling another one how to run his business. California's supreme court ruled yesterday that if male students
of a state university took all the advantages of free education, that a little military training would not be asking too much of them. If you are going to let conscientious ob-
jectors nobody would take anything
but football, swimming, theatricals,
and saxophone playing, (all of which the states provide).

SENATE ADOPTS
HOUSE LIQUOR
TAX MEASURE

Such staunch debt-paying advocates
as Senators Johnson of California
and Norris of Nebraska, republican independents, however, declared the issue should be settled at once.

Eighteen democrats, 21 republicans
and Shipstead, the lone farmer-labor-
ite, voted for the Clark proposal.
Thirty-four democrats, including the
administration leaders, and five republican opposed it.

The only other amendment approved
by the Senate was by Clark permitting newspapers and periodicals carrying liquor advertisements to circulate in dry states.

This was adopted without a roll call
as was the bill itself.
No changes were made in the house
rates of $2 a gallon on distilled spirits,
$5 a barrel on beer and 10 to 30 cents
a gallon on wines, depending on the alcoholic content, but a committee
amendment was approved reducing the occupational tax of $1,000 on breweries to $100 on the theory this field of taxation should be left to the states.

It was argued also this might discourage states from enacting gallon-
age levies, which the committee felt
should be a federal tax only.

Chairman Harrison of the finance committee estimated the bill, together
with existing tariffs, would bring in $627,000 in revenue.

In appealing for quick action, the Mississippi said every day meant a loss of $750,000 in revenue and its enactment would "still the tongues of some who are crying out against the tremendous deficit."

Meanwhile the House Ways and Means Committee was listening to appeals for a tax on foreign oils and fats and reduced levies on lower priced brands of cigarettes. It gave no sign to indicate they would affect
the general revenue bill it is drafting, however.

BITTER FIGHT EXPECTED IN LOWER HOUSE

They argued that the liquor commissions would permit an extension
of the political party and encourage
that the taxing provisions of the bill are unfair. Monroe contended that all municipalities should be given full home rule in controlling liquor.

In its present form, the bill provides for a bi-partisan state liquor
commission of three members, to be appointed by the governor, which would have general supervisory authority in the regulation of liquor
sales.

A large portion of the power to regulate, license and prohibit the liquor traffic would be vested in the cities, villages and counties, however.

Because the Chicago Democrats objected to permitting the state commission to hear appeals concerning
the issuance and revocation of local retail licenses, a special appellate commission was set up for the metropolitan area. Its members are to be the chairman of the state commission,
the secretary of state and a third person to be named by the Chicago
city council from outside its membership.

Another of the controversies which may delay the final passage of the bill is the clause, inserted by the Senate, forbidding the sale and
drinking of liquor at bars.

Differences of opinion also exist
over the taxing sections, particularly
on the 50 cent a gallon levy which
the state is to collect from manufacturers and importers of liquor.

congress of the United States was induced to pass said act upon a representation by defendants that they would thus be enabled to import articles from foreign countries solely for purposes of public exhibition; but
that after the enactment of said act,
defendants (Rockefeller center) publicly advertised that by virtue there-
of, this defendant was empowered to import, and permit its tenants to import, goods, wares and merchandise
to be used not as samples only but
for the further merchandising and
thus carry on the practices of trade
without the requirements of capital
with which to pay duty."

By virtue of the congressional act,
the complaint alleged, tenants of Rockefeller center display and sell goods in bond for a term of as much
as two years from date of importation.

This provision was used as an inducement, it was alleged, to draw tenants from other buildings, including some from buildings owned by the Ansham Corporation.

Two of the buildings in the center,
in which foreign firms with American offices are located, are the British Empire building and the Maison Francaise.

"Oh, they run errands," he replied.

NAVY PLANES IN
NONSTOP FLIGHT
TO HONOLULU

John Rodgers, U. S. N. in 1927 and 1928 seven persons, one a woman,
lost their lives trying the span the
great stretch of sea.

Rodgers, with a crew of five, fell just short of reaching Honolulu. His plane floated for nine days and was found by an American submarine, its crew unhurt.

Lester Maitland and Albert Hen-
genberger, army aviators, made the flight several months later, landing
as scheduled on Wheeler Field, near Honolulu. Then Ernest Smith and Emory Bronte made it, running out
of gasoline as they approached land.
Their plane came down on a bread-
fruit tree on Molokai, the leper island.

Then came the sole flight, insured
by Lindbergh's flight to Paris. Four planes started from Oakland and two reached Hawaii.

Two planes carrying five fliers were lost.

In 1928, Charles Kinsford-Smith,
the Australian, and his crew of three
successfully negotiated the jump.

The flagship of Lieut. Comm.
McGinnis of Indianapolis led the six planes as they began their long flight. The planes were in two squadrons of three ships, as they passed the golden gate. Quickly they found their places in flying formation, a triangle with the sixth ship
bringing up the rear.

Thousands of persons gathered on
the hillsides to see the giant craft,
which were flying just about the
heights of the hillsides which stand
at the harbor entrance.

Their flight had been delayed
about two hours because the planes
at first found it impossible to get
two of the still air with their heavy loads.

At 12:11 p. m., the first craft, the 10-P-1, piloted by Lieut. T. D. Gunn
of Adams, Cal., started from the bay
waters. Then at 12:45 p. m. Lieut.
Comm. McGinnis raised his plane.

The others made numerous attempts
to take off, finally succeeding, the last plane rising at 2:13 p. m.

"We anticipate no trouble," said McGinnis just before the hopoff. "We expect to go through on schedule and eat pineapples in Honolulu to-morrow."

The commander made an affectionate gesture toward his fellowfliers just before they boarded their flying
boats. Standing on the gangplank, McGinnis patted each aviator on the shoulder.

All the men were bundled up for
their long journey, and for meals
each plane was loaded with 75 pounds
of canned tomato juice, deviled meat
and chicken, milk chocolate, canned pineapple and jam, two bottles of hot coffee and 10 gallons of water.

A favorable weather forecast for the flight was issued by Lieut. E. W.
Stephens, navy aerologist.

McGinnis stated he would fly low,
not more than 500 feet off the water,
unless he ran into squalls, which he did not expect.

All of the thirty officers and men
have considerable experience in flying. McGinnis was graduated from the naval academy in 1918.

DAIRYMEN AND
FARMERS WILL
FIX PRICES

All orders were expected to be filled
tomorrow.

Picketing was reported to have stopped abruptly in the 100 mile area
around the city from which Chicago
obtains most of its milk. Pickets went home, some of them for their first sleep in three or four nights
and others to haul their milk to loading platforms.

Most agreed that a base surplus
plan to give farmers an average of $7.70 per hundred pounds for milk
would be adopted.

The true cause just as five deputy United States marshals and 15 special deputies were leaving the city to in-
sue trucks of the Economy Dairy company into the city. The dairy had obtained a federal injunction to protect its trucks. The marshals
were armed with shot guns, machine
guns and tear gas bombs.

Federal authorities at Washington
announced this morning they would take prompt action against any persons holding up the mails in searching railroad trains for milk.

AUTO PLATES STOLEN
HERE ARE RECOVERED

State Patrolman Harry Doolin, of
this district has been notified of the recovery of license plates that were stolen here Saturday night from a car
belonging to Ray Crouse. The plates
were discovered in an abandoned automobile near Farmersville, Ill., where
a post office robbery took place Saturday night. The abandoned Essex car carried a Missouri license, and the plates stolen in Jacksonville were in the car.

Authorities are inclined to link the
abandoned car and the post office
robbery. The thieves probably stole another machine to make their getaway.

WATER FLOODS HOME OF FORMER MORGAN COUNTY RESIDENTS

A message has been received by Mrs. Thomas Busey from her sister, Mrs. Mary Grant, who lives in Montrose, Cal., in the path of the recent flood.

She says: "Just a line to let you know I am all right. Our house stood the flood but the floors were flooded but not my room. It got the brunt of the force and I suppose it lifted a few inches. I thought we were having an earthquake. We were without water and gas. Will be back in my room in a few days. Our home was used as a refuge for people in the flood."

Mrs. Grant was born and raised in this community. She has lived in the west several years. She has nephews, George H. Edgar, and Walter Busey of this county, besides other relatives and friends who will be glad to know she is safe.

UNUSUAL DIVORCE HEARING RESUMED AT OREGON TODAY

Oregon, Ill., Jan. 10.—(P)—Crowds attending a local divorce trial impatiently awaited the resumption of the hearing today after the husband in the case testified that his wife confided to him having had intimate relations with a former Mount Morris, Ill., minister.

The case involved Otto Herzfeld's suit for divorce from his wife Ruby, and on the stand yesterday Herzfeld, foreman of a Mount Morris print shop, testified that Mrs. Herzfeld had given him a written confession of her alleged relations with the Rev. W. Clark Williams.

Both Herzfeld and Mr. Williams, now pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Lamoille, Ill., were in the court room. Previous to his wife's alleged confession Herzfeld testified to loaning the minister $600.

Herzfeld was followed on the stand by eight Mount Morris residents, all of whom testified to occasions upon which the defendant and the pastor were seen together.

Williams, accompanied to court by his wife, but not their six children, made a categorical denial of the husband's charges, but did admit buying a watch and a ring in Rockford, Ill., for Mrs. Herzfeld, he said she had given him the money for the purchase.

Court adjourned with the announcement that Mrs. Herzfeld would be the first witness today.

Concord shoppers here yesterday included Mrs. Edward Diterich and daughter.

Paintings by Noted Artists Will Go on Display Here Soon

The Art Association of Jacksonville extends an invitation to all who are interested in art to visit the David Strawn Art gallery during the exhibit, which will begin Friday, Jan. 12.

A rare display of oil paintings by forty-four American artists and an unusual collection of thirty cartoons which are caricatures of prominent people.

In these paintings by American artists it is most interesting to note the native element in contemporary American painting, gathered from all regions of the United States, each group selected by its own local authority.

The American painter, as represented in this exhibition, gives no evidence of standardization of technique or style. Individuality is undeniably the keynote in this respect, as may be observed by a scrutiny of these canvases. They will also be found eloquent, as the subject is not of the international heritage of American art.

Impressionistic Work

There are a large number of paintings in various modifications of the Impressionistic technique. Francisco Spicuzza's "Bull Frog Street, Slinger, Wisconsin," is markedly Impressionistic, as is also John Folinsbee's "Corvelli's Ferry," both of these paintings being built up entirely of brushstrokes, left frankly as such, with no details rendered realistically, although in each case, the effect is realistic, viewed at a distance. Note that these are broad brushstrokes as contrasted with the small strokes of Chas. H. Davis' "Waning Day." Broad brushwork is apparent in Aldro Hibbard's naturalistic "Winter Landscape." William P. Silva's "Morning Mist" is one of the tonal type of impressionistic painting. His brush strokes are broad, but in the use of fluid pigment, they have become unobtrusive. Maynard Dixon's "Wise Men" is painted in flat tones of rather dry pigment; its decorative character is outstanding.

Dealing with paintings in what might be called a "rough style," John Weiss' "Kentucky Landscape" impresses the beholder with a feeling that this artist worked at a very swift tempo, as though he were in a hurry to get his impression on canvas while it remained vivid. His strokes are rapid, going in every direction; yet the pigment he used was comparatively fluid.

Violence Enforces Milk Blockade

Fury with which the Chicago milk strike is being waged is strikingly shown by this photo of a truck seized from the driver and overturned by the bank of the Chicago river, after its contents were dumped. The owner has enlisted aid and is endeavoring to right the truck. Guns are being used freely by the strikers, who virtually have halted entry of milk to the city.

with pigment of about the same fluidity; yet the brush strokes are as imperceptible as in Wood's and Duncan's paintings. One imagines Mr. Sheets worked slowly and deliberately in the building up of his canvas. It is infused with a sense of peace and relaxation. Helen Forbes' "Vale in Death Valley" is done in a "smooth" technique also, but with quite dry pigment. It is interesting to note by the way, that the California group here represented has the most uniform style. All six paintings are in a very smooth technique.

Birger Sandzen's "Pond with Poplars, Logan, Utah" displays the most obvious use of pigment. It is left in thick ridges after each stroke of the brush; and plays a more important role in differentiation that does his tone. The only distinction, for instance, between the poplars themselves and their reflection in the pond, lies in the direction of the brush strokes.

Finally there is the modern technique, showing the influence of Cezanne, as in Gustaf Dalstrom's "Woman at Window." Likewise derivative of Cezanne, is the convention of outlining the objects in a painting with black or some other dark color, as the fruit and other items in Jean Crawford Adams' "Federal Building," and Charles Rosen's "White Church." This strengthens the sense of essential form, but simultaneously approaches abstraction, as it is contrary to appearance; for outlines are obliterated in bright light. As the ancient world fond of saying, "All Roads Lead to Rome." The result is what counts, and the methods by which each artist achieves his effects merely add to the fascinating variations of the medium, which so richly repay close examination.

FARMERS IN COUNTY BUSY WITH ANNUAL JOB OF BUTCHERING

One of the chief activities of many farmers in this section at the present time is butchering. Some farmers say weather conditions of the past few days have been ideal for the work of killing the hogs, rendering the lard and doing the other tasks associated with butchering. It has been neither too cold nor too warm, the farmers say.

Huge iron kettles under which wood fires burn merrily are seen on many farms, and the men and women are intensely busy at their individual tasks in connection with providing meat for themselves and for sale to the townspeople. Some farmers have their own smoke houses in which a part of the meat may be smoked for future use. Fresh pork sausage, side meat and other portions of the hogs are sold by many farmers who either have customers in town or sell it to meat markets.

The new processing tax on hogs is now to be considered by the farmers. This tax has been explained at numerous meetings in this county.

Abraham Lincoln was about 6 feet 4 inches tall and the tallest president of the United States.

RUMOR WABASH TO CLOSE STATION AT ARNOLD ON JAN. 15

Reports are current in railroad circles that the Wabash station at Arnold will be closed Jan. 15. It is planned to add the Arnold business to the station in this city and dispense with the agent at Arnold.

Railway officials do not regard this as an actual closing of the station, but rather as a combining of its business with that of a larger shipping point. It is understood some fourteen such changes are to be made on the Wabash system this month.

One other such combination of interest to people in this section is the joining of the Versailles and Hersman stations on the "high line." The station at Versailles will be closed at a telegraph office, and the business transferred to Hersman.

Talks at Chapel on Wonders of Century

Rev. William Arthur Richards, pastor of the Congregational church, addressed the student body of Illinois College, at the regular assembly Wednesday morning.

Mr. Richards, taking as his theme the wonders of the 20th century, commented on the accumulated evidences of modern progress as exhibited in Chicago at the World's Fair. However there are many factors at work for the destruction and diminishing of the value of human personality. Several factors are responsible. Modern science, which has reduced man to a complicated mass of mechanism and chemicals, has dangerous implications because of the misinterpretation put on the analysis. Man is apt to get an inferiority complex, to come to believe that he is trivial and insignificant. The new vogue of writing is also partly responsible for this attitude. Modern literature depicts man as blackly as possible and attempts to detract him from the pinnacle on which he has been set by old writers. Lastly, there is the influence of that vague term, "the machine age" which standardizes and systematizes all human personality.

There are countervailing forces at work in the world fortunately said Mr. Richards, for this very scientific analysis only serves to make the mystery of Life more deeply and wondrously mysterious. Jesus, the champion of personality, is still today for the uplifting of human life and only through him can human life be raised to a high level.

Preceding his address, Glendal Harper played a number of selections on the flute. He was accompanied by Miss Mahalia McGeehe at the piano.

ALICE WYNEKOOP GOES ON TRIAL FOR LIFE TODAY

Chicago, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The matriculation of Wynkoop house, branded by the state a murderer, goes on trial tomorrow for freedom and life.

It is the premiere of that mystery drama, the murder in an operating room of Rheta Gardner Wynkoop—a story steeped in the love of mother and son, of that son and his slain wife, pervaded with the odor of chloroform and the flavor of a physician's office.

Dr. Alice Wynkoop, a wife of a woman, is the character actress about whom the play revolves. The state says she has acted the part before, that on the afternoon of November 21, in the dark basement office where she and her late husband had practiced medicine 40 years or more, she fired a pistol bullet into the naked back of Rheta, the 23 year old wife of her son, Earle. That Rheta was already unconscious, smothered by chloroform forced against her mouth, when that shot was fired.

Why should this woman of high medical reputation take the life of a daughter-in-law she professed to love?

The state will ask a jury in Judge Joseph E. McGuire's court to believe that the 62 year old matriculation who ruled the Wynkoop house on West Monroe street plotted the death of Rheta to solve the domestic problems of a philandering son—Earle, who was driving to Kansas City when his wife came to her tragic end. The state will tell the jury that the benefits that would accrue to Dr. Alice, to Earle and to his sister Catherine, who was a physician, from insurance policies recently taken out on Rheta's life were added motives for the young woman's murder.

But the lines assigned to the elderly principal were as much a mystery as the answer the jury must give to the question of her guilt.

"We have something up our sleeves," said Attorney W. W. Smith, chief defender.

Judge David ascertained from Dr. Francis McNamara, a physician, that Dr. Alice was ready and anxious for trial and could withstand the ordeal of four and one-half hours daily in court.

The court agreed to let Dr. Alice be wheeled from jail to court, but announced that whenever she is moved in or out of the room, the jury will be excluded. Furthermore, the court will brook no demonstrations, no flaunting of mourning garb before the jury.

EQUIPOISE GROWS NEW HOOF; TO TRY RECORD ASSAULTS

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Equipoise, the little giant of the turf, is growing a new hoof in preparation for another assault on the money-winning record of $376,744 held by Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Bet.

The C. V. Whitney handicap champion, winner of $322,970, will return to the racing this spring and summer, providing training does not again injure his foot.

Equipoise raced with practically a lame leg for the past two seasons, yet was able to defeat almost every horse than ran against him. Most of his hoof was cut away recently in an effort to clear up the trouble, but it is growing again, and his handlers expect him to be ready for training early in the spring.

It was first planned to retire Equipoise to the stud, but Trainer T. J. Hesley says Whitney has decided to give Ekky another chance to eclipse Sun Bet's record. Meanwhile, the little chestnut is wallowing in the mud on the Whitney farm, thoroughly enjoying himself while growing a new hoof, which may prove to be golden if he wins many rich races.

ATHLETICS WILL BOOM THIS YEAR BRUNDAGE SAYS

(Note: This is another of a series on the sports outlook, written especially for The Associated Press by prominent leaders.)

By AVERY BRUNDAGE
President, Amateur Athletic Union; President, American Olympic Association; Chairman, U. S. Olympic Committee

Chicago, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Amateur athletics give prospect of booming in the United States in 1934.

This is because the year marks the beginning of preparations for the Olympic games of 1936 to be held in Germany. Also because American teams have been invited to compete in various nations this year.

Friendly international relations prevailing in amateur sport and the respect for American methods and competitors existing abroad is demonstrated by the fact that the A. A. U. has, at this time, invitations to send a team to Japan, an ice hockey team to Sweden, and a swimming team to Japan. It is expected the winners of the 1933 A. A. U. women's basketball crown will visit England for the international championships.

Then too, the Olympic committee, at the 1932 Olympic games, will arrange for tryouts for the eleventh Olympic, select coaches and managers and recommend the members of the team to represent the United States.

Despite the unbalanced economic conditions, there was no diminution of interest in amateur athletics in 1933. Over 50,000 registered athletes competed in sanctioned open events and hundreds of thousands participated in novice and closed events under the auspices of the A. A. U. and its allied bodies.

Because of the Century of Progress, Chicago became the sports capital of the country last year. The U. S. A. U. was called upon to arrange the most ambitious sports program ever attempted more than 40 national championships were conducted and over 150 separate competitions were held in practically every sport.

Special features of 1933 were the advancement made by southern track and field athletes, the growth of interest in amateur ice hockey and supremacy of the mid-west in amateur basketball and wrestling.

AMATEUR SPORTS HURT BOXING, IS HOWARD'S BELIEF

By Charles Dunkley.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The key in the lock turned and Kid Howard's gymnasium, for 25 years a famous training establishment for heroes of the prize ring, closed its doors today.

Lack of public interest in professional boxing was responsible, Howard, who has seen champions come and go, believes that professional boxing is dying and that it will be supplanted by the amateurs.

"And it will be just too bad," Howard said. "Himself a former featherweight, Howard believes he knows whereof he speaks.

"Boxing is a sport for men and not young boys," he explained. "The result, in my judgment, will be distressing if they allow young boys to engage in the game. The results of early training and abuses in the ring will bring about mental, perhaps physical, injuries if there is not close supervision over their conditioning and their performances in the ring."

In the heyday of ring prosperity, Kid Howard's establishment was the training quarters for Freddie Welsh, Jack Dempsey, Jesse Willard, Benny Leonard, Kid Herman, Jimmy Wolf, Gene Tunney, Harry Greb, and in fact every outstanding fighter of the day. While these ring heroes went through their paces, the public was admitted at twenty-five cents a head. In the last couple of years, however, the gymnasium crowds dwindled and finally fell off until it was no longer profitable for Howard to keep open.

"The sport is dying," he said, "and I can see no future for the sport. There are more clubs and more stadiums in the country with not outstanding boxers to fill them or even come close. Why, in the last two years, with the exception of three or four outstanding contests, no professional bout in Chicago has drawn more than a thousand dollars. Think that over. Meanwhile, the amateurs have drawn anywhere from twenty to forty thousand."

Howard recalled that Dempsey at the height of his career, drew thirty thousand spectators to his establishment just to see the former heavyweight champion fight through his paces. Big Jess Williams, Sam Langford, Gene Tunney, Benny Leonard and others were correspondingly as popular, but those good old days have passed, Howard believes.

So today his training establishment is like a morgue with no tattoo of the punching bag resounding through the place, no sigh of a boxing glove landing on a sparring partner's chin.

The sport is dead, Howard says.

New York, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Clarify, four-year-old son of Chatterbox, racing in the white and brown silks of Morton L. Schwartz, sped to his second straight victory today, winning the Saratoga purse of one mile at Tropical park.

With Wayne Wright in the saddle, Clarify reeled off eight furlongs in the last time of 1:38.

At the finish Clarify was only galloping three lengths in front of Stroll Along. Monel was beaten another three lengths.

Earl Porter, the turf, leading jockey, was held to one winner for the second time since the year of the year. He won in the fourth with Sandwack to stretch his total for the year to twenty.

Gilbert Elston, running for Mose Goldblatt, came from off the pace to defeat seven other three-year-olds in the six furlong top event at Jefferson park.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Franklin Potts Glass, 76, publisher of the Montgomery Advertiser and member of the United States Railroad Board of Mediation, died early today. Redbirds Here Tonight

Here are two of the Redbirds who will appear here tonight against Illinois College on the I. S. D. court, and these two boys promise to make the evening most interesting. Goff, rated as one of the outstanding forwards in the conference, will tangle with

High schools sponsoring tournaments at the end of the first semester are beginning to get excited about their coming events—and there are plenty of them.

Both Winchester and Ashland have tournaments carded for the last week of the month, and Petersburg has dipped down to Franklin to get another team for its tournament. Petersburg's affair comes off next week-end.

Winchester has selected the eight teams which will compete there this year, and Ashland is reported to have completed its schedule. Jacksonville, which has been competing at Winchester for a number of years, is passing around its good-will this year by transferring to the Ashland meeting.

ILLINOIS STATE SENATE HAUNTED BY GHOST VOTING

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The senate chamber today was haunted by the spectre of "ghost voting."

While Senator James O. Monroe, Collinsville Democrat, was discussing the game going until Ashland was the first team to score two points in the third overtime, really won the game when Robinson made that first basket. Fortunately the mistake made no difference as Ashland also made the next basket. Had Rushville followed Robinson's basket with a field goal, complications would have arisen. The rule reads that the first team to score two points in the third overtime wins. The officials Friday night were under the impression a team had to be two points ahead to win.

The show was a financial as well as artistic success for Tilden, the promoter and star performer. The garden was packed to the rafters and the gate receipts, although below expectations were announced as $2,750.

Vines got his only consolation for the evening when he teamed with Vincent Richards in the doubles to beat Davis Cup partner, Frank Hunter. The scores were 6-1, 6-0.

Walker, a heavy set, genial person who made his money in the fish and oyster business and who brought a federal league team to Chicago's north side in the big baseball war back in 1914, immediately brandished a warning to the baseball world that the Cubs, reinforced with new strength, were out to wage a relentless campaign to bring not only the National league pennant but the world's championship to Chicago.

"We have been in two world series since 1929 and were more or less dubs," he said. "The 1934 National league race looks like it is going to be one of the closest in years, but I think that the Cubs are going to win. We got a lot of added punch in Chuck Klein. Then you can look for a vastly improved showing from Babe Herman. I'm convinced that Babe tried too hard last season. Our veteran pitchers, like Charlie Root and Pat Malone, will do better with a faster ball."

LEGION DANCE STATE HOSPITAL GYM TONIGHT

WILLIAM TILDEN WALLOPS VINES

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Before an American record tennis gallery nearly 17,000 spectators, Big Bill Tilden, 41 year old veteran, handed a straight set trouncing tonight to Ellsworth Vines, 22 year old Californian and former world amateur champion making his professional debut. The scores were 8-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Tilden was extended by the hard hitting western youth only in the first set when the lanky Vines scored with frequent outbursts of blistering forehand driving, but yielded after a spectacular dance battle for points. Thereafter the old master, covering court with an agility that belied his years, administered a tennis spanking to the Californian.

Vines electrified the capacity crowd with many of his booming shots, but there was no doubt about the outcome or Tilden's mastery after the first set, even though it seemed the consensus of experts that the western star was showing his best tennis since he ruled the amateur heights, at home and abroad, in 1922.

Tilden's service was no more difficult to handle than the delivery of young Master Vines but it was more consistently effective. Big Bill's forehand wallop was not quite the stinging weapon that Vines unfurled, when the latter had a clear opportunity to wind up and apply the power, but again it was more accurate and better placed. Off the backhand Vines revealed himself a showman by trying the Australian two handed grip, in the first set, but he didn't have much time thereafter to attempt this unorthodox maneuver, due to the pressure of his opponent's raking shots.

The answer in a nutshell seemed to be that Tilden knew and executed entirely too much tennis stroking strategy, plus control, for Vines to cope with, under circumstances that no doubt were somewhat strange to the Californian. Instead of showing any tendency to tire under the pace, Big Bill got better as the match progressed. He did not drop a single service game in either of the last two sets, kept Vines generally on the run and alternately delighted the crowd with passing shots that whistled down the sidelines or craftily placed drop shots that just cleared the net and left Vines flustered in back-court.

Tilden rose to dramatic heights only on two or three occasions and indulged in only one mild debate with the officials over a decision. With the score all in the first set, Big Bill evoked roars of approval with four blistering service shots, none of which Vines could handle, then pulled out the deciding game after Vines led at 30-love.

The show was a financial as well as artistic success for Tilden, the promoter and star performer. The garden was packed to the rafters and the gate receipts, although below expectations were announced as $2,750.

Vines got his only consolation for the evening when he teamed with Vincent Richards in the doubles to beat Davis Cup partner, Frank Hunter. The scores were 6-1, 6-0.

Local Collegians Seek Third Win in Row; Redbirds to Open Little 19 Conference Season

Probable Starters
State Normal
Pos. Miller
Goff, F. Bunch
Davis, C. Lasiter
Jacquet, G. Winn
H. Adams, G. Pearce
Time—8 P. M.
Place—I. S. D. gymnasium.
Officials—Conroy and Layman.

Illinois College's Blueboys, now that they have started winning in the Little 19 conference, will run up against the Illinois State Normal Redbirds on the Illinois School for the Deaf court in what promises to be a thrilling basketball battle, with much more than the outcome of the game at stake.

The game will be called at eight o'clock, and will be the only game on the schedule for the evening.

Led by the Little 19's "Club Gable," Coach Joe Cogdal, the Redbirds will open their Little 19 season against the Blueboys, after a preliminary campaign which has seen the Teachers rambling through two states in time up battles. Illinois dropped its first "JOE COGDAL" three league games, all of them by narrow margins, before hitting a winning stride which has carried them through to two victories during the past week.

Aside from the fact that the game will count in the Little 19 standings and that the Redbirds and Blueboys always put up a real battle, a couple of other issues may be decided tonight. One of them is which is the best individual player James "Pim" Goff, State Normal's red hot forward, or Capt. Slim Jim Winn, Illinois star guard and high point man in the Little 19 league.

Goff, who has been hanging the bankboards around the conference for three years, has been one of the mainstays of the Redbird machine ever since he first began pitching collegiate basketballs. He's Normal's all-star athlete, competing in football, basketball, track, baseball and tennis. He competes in more athletics than Winn, but Winn has been a star on the Illinois basketball teams for two years and is beginning a third year as a player, a member of the championship basketball team, and a member of the track team on occasions. These two boys are probably the outstanding athletes in the conference, and any match between them is certain to be interesting.

However, there will be a lot of other boys out on the court to help these two alone. Normal has Davis, forward, and Fitzgerald, a center, who are dangerous basket shots, along with Jacquet, the spark plug of the team, and White and H. Adams, who have been alternating in the guards positions.

Athletic Director LaRue Van Meter last night said that he would stick by the same starting line-up he has used in the last two games, with Norbert Miller, freshman from White Hall, and John Bunch, at forward, Louis Lasiter at center and Winn and Herbert Pearce at guard. Pearce may not be in condition to start because of a heavy cold contracted recently.

The Redbirds won about half of their opening tilt, defeating Oshkosh teachers of Wisconsin on the Normal court, and then losing a decision to them by two points during the holiday vacation. Washington University defeated them out in a game at Normal, but the Redbirds have shown a lot of power in early games.

Fitzgerald, Goff and Jacquet are considered the three big shots of the invading quintet. Van Meter said he plans to start the above mentioned five players, but that he would have Cochrane, Bundy, Sarr, and one or two other players ready to get in the game.

CHICAGO CUBS SELECT EIGHT TEAMS TO PLAY AT WINCHESTER

By Paul Mickelson
Chicago, Jan. 10.—(AP)—William Bradley, Walker, one of the fire brands of the old federal league baseball war, ascended the club baseball throne as William the third today.

The third is an unbroken line of Williams to take over the official reins of the team—William Wrigley, Jr., and William L. Veeck preceded him—Walker was elevated to the presidency of the club by unanimous vote of the principal stockholders. His election officially filled the office he has conducted since the sudden death of President Veeck last October 5.

Walker, a heavy set, genial person who made his money in the fish and oyster business and who brought a federal league team to Chicago's north side in the big baseball war back in 1914, immediately brandished a warning to the baseball world that the Cubs, reinforced with new strength, were out to wage a relentless campaign to bring not only the National league pennant but the world's championship to Chicago.

Married Flirts

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married the same day as LILA ROTALING and DEREK BLISS. Lila expects to live in luxury, but Gypsy intends to keep her job, teaching in a settlement house.

The first night Gypsy and Tom spent in their New York apartment VERA GRAY, an old friend of Tom's, telephoned. Tom asked her to luncheon to meet Gypsy, but Gypsy can't leave her work. Later Vera calls and the two girls dislike each other.

Weeks later Lila and Derek return from their honeymoon in Europe. Lila asks the Weavers to dinner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VI
"MR. BLISS, sir? Studio A, on the 14th." The page boy, with his pillbox hat cocked askew, answered Tom's question. Gypsy's heart was beating faster than usual. The prospect of seeing Lila again was rather exciting in itself; and she had met Derek only once. The building was imposing. All its angles were elegant in the modern manner.

Gypsy stole a shy side glance at Tom as the elevator shot upward. He seemed cool. No one could guess what he was thinking.

"I'm a fool to be excited about so small a thing as a mere dinner party," Gypsy chided herself. "Why, my heart is going as fast as if I had an appointment with the dentist..."

The clatter, the tinkle of glass and rise and fall of many voices, proclaimed Lila's apartment before the elevator door opened. A Filipino boy in a white coat bowed low at the entrance.

"Darling!" That was Lila, rushing forward, a new, strange, elegant Lila in black rouses. She was Carmen a la mode. She was mysterious, seductive, alluring. Gypsy felt all at once, the home-made-ness of her own Maud Muller costume. It seemed to her there were a dozen people in the room, although later she was to discover there were only six, counting Derek and Lila. So does a party in a strange setting affect many of us. Meanwhile, Gypsy was glad to be carried off, up a flight of gleaming stairs, to lay her wrap aside and attend to the business of renewing her complexion.

"Darling, how thrilling to see you after all these ages!" Lila always talked that way, in a breathless, staccato fashion.

She seemed feverish. She chattered, laughed, gestured, as though her emotions were all at concert pitch. She seemed thinner, Gypsy thought, but that might have been only the effect of the black frock, cascading into many ruffles. Or of her makeup, which stressed a lilac eye shadow and made her eyes seem large and wistful.

THE room was all black and white and cherry. A bed made of some curious, gleaming black wood; a dressing table of metal. A white rug. A cherry shawl thrown over the foot of the white satin coverlet. Cherry curtains. Lila, catching Gypsy's interested glance, said, languidly, that she thought it rather an amusing decor. She hadn't chosen it herself, she added. Some decorator Aunt Frisby knew had run it up in their absence.

"Derek's own place is beyond there," she said, carelessly, throwing open the door communicating with a black and white shining bathroom. And sure enough, there was Derek's masculine chamber, solidly maple and blue and matter of fact.

GYPSEY told herself loyally that all this surface glamour of the smart world meant nothing to her; and yet, in her heart, she was just

"Now come on down and meet the others," she commanded. "You look simply sweet, dear. You all ways do." And Gypsy felt comforted. Perhaps she wouldn't be out of the house, after all, in her little old home-made dinner dress. And evidently Marko wasn't to be here. The other guests resolved themselves into personalities. There was Hilda Blanchard, one of Lila's friends; there were two young men called, respectively, Danny and Bobby, both evidently associates of Derek in the financial world; and there was a pleasant looking young woman who, Gypsy presently discovered, was Danny's wife.

Gypsy liked Derek. He was a pale, bland, reserved young man with light brown hair and a diffident smile. His manner, though quiet, was distinctly cordial. Gypsy saw with pleasure that he and Tom were "bitting it off" well. Tom hadn't expected to like the crowd...

And yet—and yet—Gypsy was conscious within herself of an unwilling sense of inferiority. The chatter, the gowns, the give-and-take of these well-dressed young people, all belonged to a different world than hers and Tom's. What did they know of scrimping to make ends meet? They all sounded so assured, they threw off casual references to smart restaurants: the younger of the two men, Bobby Wilford, tossed great names into the conversation quite off-handedly.

"I suppose he's what they call a man about town," Gypsy said to herself innocently. He looked pale and vivid and exhausted beside her husband, whose summer tan had lasted well into the early winter. Tom seemed a true man and the other just a vague shadow of one, almost like a dummy in a tailor's window.

THE dessert came just then and the young man called Bobby, who was at Gypsy's right, began to talk to her about the theater. Had she seen "The Bright Care"?

County Commissioners Set Salaries of New Officers; Cut Expenses

Resolutions were adopted by the Morgan county board of commissioners here yesterday providing for substantial decreases in the future operating expenses of the county. Salary slashes for county officers and their deputies, decreased hospitalization for charitable patients, abolition of the payment for inquests, no deaths of inmates of the Jacksonville State hospital and funeral expense accounts for paupers are provided in the resolutions signed by the commissioners, Harry W. Petefish, Clifton Davis and Wm. M. Rees.

The board fixed the maximum expenses to be paid for hospital care of charitable patients in the hospitals in Morgan county at $2,000, and resolved that no claims in excess of the budget of $2,000 for the ensuing year shall be allowed.

The board also adopted a resolution in which it is stated that no claims filed against the county for the conduct of inquests or inquisitions into the death of any inmate of the Jacksonville State hospital will be allowed or paid out of the funds of the county. The resolutions also provide that no claims for the digging or filling of graves for pauper burials, nor for the site of graves for any such pauper burials will be allowed as claims against Morgan county. The total expense for the burial of any pauper within the limits of Morgan county shall not exceed the total sum of $40. The rules governing the burial expenditures were re-adopted from April 28, 1928 rulings. Burial rules however, provide for the interring free of charge in the cemetery at the Morgan County Farm, any pauper dying within the county limits.

Following up action taken some months ago in reducing the salaries of county officers, who took office following the last general election, the board yesterday set the annual salaries of the sheriff, assessor and treasurer and the county clerk at $2,000 each, a cut of $500. These salaries became effective the first Monday in December, 1934, and do not apply to present office holders named above. Salaries of the deputies and clerks in each of the county offices shall not exceed the sum of $1,200 per annum, except the chief deputy sheriff is allowed $300 as additional compensation each year. The resolution sets forth that it is the purpose of the commissioners in passing the resolution at this time to inform the prospective candidates of the amounts at which their salaries and the allowances for their deputies and clerks will be fixed at the September term, 1934.

In addition to provision having been made for salaries of officers and clerks and deputies who assume duties next December the commissioners set new salaries for deputy and clerk hire for the remainder of the year in offices of the sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer, county superintendent of schools and state's attorney. Some of the new salaries amount to substantial decreases.

In addition to fixing expenditures for regular deputy hire amounts to be used for miscellaneous expenses in the offices of the county clerk, sheriff and state's attorneys were set.

Everett Patterson, Jesse James and Ralph Kearney, who were in Springfield Tuesday night attending a meeting of A. & P. store managers and clerks.
